Remembering Us - Turning Pain Into Art

In 2016, Denver actor Scott Takeda ("Gone Girl," "Dallas Buyers Club," and "Whiskey Tango Foxtrot") suffered a brain injury, and his wife, filmmaker Lori Allred became his caregiver. Through his extended recovery, the couple learned about the struggle and shame associated with brain injuries. They co-wrote and directed of an autobiographical film about their experiences called, "Remembering Us." Now traveling the country and screening their film at film festivals, they want "Remembering Us" to help remove the stigma associated with TBIs and the use of medical cannabis to treat a TBI's debilitating symptoms. Please join us for an interactive discussion about their film, their life, and their vision/mission that came out of their TBI experience; turning their pain into art.
